Iverson Riddle Developmental Center and Kristie Thompson, OptumHealth Behavioral Solutions. In addition to our regular conference program, eight workshops will be presented. BCBA credit and NCPA Category A credit for psychologists are available for workshop attendance and a minimum of 10 additional BCBA credits can be obtained by attending approved sessions in the regular program. A poster session, silent auction, and NCABA social will round out the conference events. Included with this newsletter is a tentative agenda and membership registration and conference registration forms. You can view additional information about the conference, view the poster submission guidelines, and register online at <http://www.nc-aba.com>. Please note that the reservations for the hotel must be made by January 17th in order to secure the NCABA rates.

Donate to the Silent Auction!

We will once again have a silent auction at the 2010 conference beginning Wednesday at 9:00AM and ending Thursday at 6:30PM. Revenue from the silent auction, as with all revenue from the conference, is used to support future conferences and events for NCABA members. If you have items you would like to donate (new or like new quality), please contact Ya-yu at ylo1@uncc.edu. Donations are tax deductible and a receipt will be provided. If you donate items by February 3rd, 2010 your name or company will be listed in the sponsorship area of our attendees' conference packets.

Conference Workshops

Pre-Conference Workshop I - Presenter: Raymond G. Miltenberger, Ph.D., BCBA "Analysis and Treatment of Repetitive Behavior Disorders (Habits, Tics and Stuttering)." This workshop will involve discussion of issues in diagnosis, assessment, and treatment of repetitive behavior disorders, including tic disorders, nervous habits, and stuttering. After information is presented on diagnostic issues, behavioral assessment and functional assessment strategies will be discussed. Next the habit reversal procedure as applied to each of the disorders will be described. Finally, other approaches to treatment that complement habit reversal will be described. These approaches to behavioral assessment and treatment will be illustrated with research studies conducted by the author.

Pre-Conference Workshop II - Presenter: R.M. "Duke" Schell, Ph.D., BCBA-D "Top Ten Ethical Problems for Behavior Analysts." This workshop will focus on the relationship among the Behavior Analyst Certification Board's (BACB) Guidelines for Responsible Conduct for Behavior Analysts, the BACB's Professional Disciplinary Standards, and the APA's ethical responsibilities for psychologists. Data from the BACB, APA and other sources will be reviewed and discussed by the participants to apply in their everyday use of applied behavior analysis. The "Guidelines" and "Standards" will also be discussed in view of their impact on the ethical use of behavior analytic practices. In addition, the participants will review case examples that raise questions of ethical responsibility specifically in the context of non-behavior analytic procedures and therapies that may be provided to people with intellectual and related developmental disabilities.

Pre-Conference Workshop III - Presenter: Kristie Thompson, Ph.D., LPA, BCBA-D "Insurance Coverage for ABA Services: What You Should Know about Billing Insurance Companies." Correctly billing insurance companies and other third party payers for autism related ABA services is an important step to ensure reimbursement for those services. Correct billing will decrease denials, wait time, and overall frustration with the insurance industry. The information provided in this workshop will help providers maximize a successful claim submission to third party payers. In addition, participants will come to understand that while many states have passed legislation mandating that services for autism and ABA be covered, coverage is dependent on group size, self-funded or fully-insured plans and other policies. As more mandates and self-funded plans provide coverage for ABA and autism, it is essential that anyone working as a BCBA or BCBA-D learn their way around the billing process.

Pre-Conference Workshop IV - Presenters: Ruth Hurst, Ph.D., BCBA-D Jacqueline Gottlieb, Ph.D., and Judy Clark “Recognizing and Helping Families in Distress: Approaches to Family Support from Behavior Analytic Service Providers.” Family members often experience stress when one member of the family is developmentally delayed or is on the autism spectrum, and this stress may be compounded if the disabled family member is having significant behavior problems or is making poor progress. This workshop will provide a functional interpretation of conditions that may differentially affect family response to problem behaviors in their children as well as their response to behavior analytic services and service providers. To elucidate the interpretation, several situations experienced by parents (hypothetical) will be reviewed and interpreted, and participants will be encouraged to participate in interpreting these examples. For difficult situations encountered by families, antecedent interventions (preventive strategies) will be discussed as well as ways of working through existing problems. Guidelines for providing or obtaining support for families will be discussed as well as measures for insuring the social validation of behavior analytic services.

Post-Conference Workshop V - Presenter: Timothy R. Vollmer, Ph.D., BCBA “Differential Reinforcement As Treatment for Severe Behavior Disorders: What Your Textbook Forgot To Tell You.” This presenter will review differential reinforcement procedures in general, including differential reinforcement of other behavior (DRO) and differential reinforcement of alternative behavior (DRA). In addition, some nuances of the procedures and their effects will be discussed and potential solutions will be proposed and supported by data. First, levels of treatment integrity influence behavior in vastly distinct ways depending on a) the type of differential reinforcement procedure used, b) the schedule of reinforcement, and c) the recent and remote history of reinforcement. Second, differential reinforcement procedures in experiments typically involve extinction. However, in practice, differential reinforcement rarely involves extinction. Methods for maintaining treatment efficacy without extinction will be discussed. Third, when behavior occurs in a hierarchy or behavioral chain, it is sometimes not clear whether appropriate behavior should be reinforced when it occurs in close temporal proximity to problematic behavior. The notions of differential reinforcement within a sequence and change over delay will be discussed to address this latter concern. The workshop will be approximately half lecture and half audience participation through questions and case examples. We will close with a proposed behavioral model of differential reinforcement as treatment for behavior disorders.

Post-Conference Workshop VI - Presenters: Timothy D. Ludwig, Ph.D. & Lori H. Diener, Ph.D. “Know your System, Know their Behaviors, No Problem.” This workshop will equip you with the introductory skills and knowledge to apply behavioral systems analysis tools to design improvement interventions in your clinic, classroom, team, or other organizational systems. This workshop contains two parts: (1) Part One will focus on the value of using behavioral systems analysis tools, an overview of the tools, and building fluency in the fundamentals of system thinking. (2) Part Two will include guided practice in the use of behavioral systems analysis tools to understand how your systems impact relevant behaviors connected to your critical needs. The aim of this workshop is to ensure that participants will be able to begin to apply behavioral systems analysis tools to their own organization.

Post-Conference Workshop VII - Presenter: Ruth Hurst, Ph.D., BCBA-D “Assessment and Treatment of Grief and Loss in Individuals with Developmental Disabilities.” Expressions of grief may occur with changes in life circumstances, including such things as a change in where an individual resides or loss of a family member or friend. This workshop will focus on a functional behavior analytic interpretation of grief and loss based on the behavioral framework. In addition, guidelines for assessment and interventions arising from that interpretation will also be presented. Particular attention will be paid to antecedent interventions intended to lead to better behavioral adjustment in the face of life changing circumstances than would be expected without the interventions. Specific case examples will be presented to illustrate interventions and to encourage discussion.

Post-Conference Workshop VIII - Presenters: Lori Stuart, M.A., LPA & Jeannie Golden, Ph.D., BCBA-D “Separate Autism Classrooms: Using Evidence Based Practices and Verbal Behavior.” Many classrooms for students with autism are set up to accommodate rigid behavior (individual working areas and work systems) and end up facilitating rather than instructing. The classroom arrangement demonstrated during this workshop is based on functional ecological assessment that results in decreasing incompatible behavior for typical learning experiences such as stereotypic behavior, non-responding and elopement and actually makes the group learning areas preferable. In addition, this classroom structure focuses on using discrete trials across verbal behavior units to engage in lesson plans more so than focusing on assisting in completion of tasks. With an emphasis on verbal behavior accurate responding increases as well as number of exchanges with the instructor and other students.
