

Autism Society
of North Carolina

Clinical Services Tailored to each Individual

What Matters Most:

- Empowering the individual to be their own best advocate.
- Individualized, evidence-based programs that build meaningful skills.
- Enhancing quality of life and overall happiness, for clients and their families.
- Celebrating neurodiversity and embracing what makes our clients unique.
- Programming rooted in naturalistic, behavioral interventions that align with developmentally appropriate practice.

The Autism Society of North Carolina as a non-profit organization, partners with individuals with autism and their families to provide high-quality supports and treatment options that are tailored to their strengths, wants, and needs.

We believe that the most effective interventions are those rooted in the understanding that people with autism are valued members of our communities and that their unique strengths, talents, and preferences are to be spotlighted and enhanced through their participation in our programs.
